

ABSTRACT

A portable device is provided for retrieving medical information pertaining to a selected patient. The device includes a readable tag configured to be read by at least one reader associated with a user interface. The user interface is configured to display the medical information upon the reader reading the tag.